Reverend Cate Edmonds
The Rectory, Station Road,
Feniton

Dear Friends,

Spring has certainly arrived, hasn't it? The weather up to now has been very kind to us, perhaps by the time you read this it will be raining, but I hope not.

Certainly the weather has been great for the first few weddings of the season. I'm sure we all love a good wedding, when we are celebrating the love shared by a couple and which they are openly declaring as they publicly commit themselves to each other. That love which they share of course comes directly from God through Jesus Christ, through his death and resurrection which we celebrate particularly at Easter.

At Easter we fill our churches with flowers in celebration just as we fill the churches with flowers at weddings in celebration. Somehow the sight and smell of floral arrangements lift our spirits and help us feel that there is something special happening. Celebrating God's love for us all is certainly something very special and even though the blooms die away, God's love for each and every one of us doesn't, it's there for us forever.

Often when I'm talking to children about God's love I try to get them to understand that it's not sappy, it's not about hearts and chocolates etc but about actions, kind deeds. We can see love being shared in the way that people behave with each other and when God's love is shared we find that the world around us is a happier place. A kindly smile and a helping hand are particularly good ways of sharing the love of God.

When the risen Jesus Christ appeared to his disciples he breathed on them and said "peace be with you". We too can breathe God's love on others, not a literal breath but a kindly thought or action.

If there was more breathing of God's love around the world I am sure we wouldn't have as much pain and suffering that we see every day.

The blooms of celebration open up and smile at us, perhaps we too can open up and smile more frequently and we might notice a lifting of the collective spirit.

Every blessing, Rev Cate

Yellingham Farm Diary – April

Lambing finished 2 days ago and overall it went well. We ended up turning out 44 sets of twins, 4 sets of triplets and 13 singles. In addition we have 2 bottle fed lambs – Monica is more human than human!

The fun now starts to keep them all alive and give them the best possible chance of survival. The first job will be worming the lambs then this is swiftly followed by their first set of two injections that prevent a series of sheep related illnesses (too technical to list). Then the inevitable sleepless night or two when we wean the lambs from their mums – boy do they make a noise! But this job won't be done for a couple of months yet.

The other wonderful sight this week was the turning out of the cattle after their stint indoors over the winter months. You open the gate They stand and stare at the massive green open space and then a second later they kick up their back legs, their tail goes high in the air, and they are off at a hundred miles an hour. Bless them. With the cattle and sheep all out, we are turning our attention to looking after our grass and setting aside fields for hay. The tractor is busy scarifying and rolling the fields in preparation for haymaking in the summer. My spare time (haha) is now focusing on my garden as in a rash moment I agreed to open my garden on the 14th June to raise funds for the Hospice.

STOP PRESS ... Nell my amazing sheepdog has just had 6 amazing puppies.

CLARETS' CORNER

I hope all of you that came to my evening (little red van) at the parish hall enjoyed the evening. It was great to see so many people there. I'm sorry to those of you who couldn't find a seat (I didn't realise so many people were going to turn up).

I would like to say THANK YOU to -- BLACKDOWN SOUND for the music, Colin and Jo of the SIX BELLS for the bar and nice buffet, PAYHEMBURY PROVISIONS for selling tickets, the PARISH HALL COMMITTEE for use of the hall, IAN and SUE DERBYSHIRE for taking care of the raffle, to everyone who helped set up the hall on Friday evening and helped to clear up at the end of the evening on Saturday, and a special THANKS goes to JOHN SOMERS who was a great help in organising the evening and designing and printing the posters and tickets, and of course to all of you that came along to help make it a great evening!

After expenses we made a profit of £786 which went to the PAYHEMBURY IN NEED CHARITY which was brilliant! And I had a great evening telling a few tales as well.

WHAT A GREAT VILLAGE!!

See you around the village and UP THE CLARETS! MARTY

Marty's Little Red Van

- the funny, the tragic, the memorable and the difficult experiences of Payhembury's own inimitable postman

We all enjoyed a wonderful evening in the Hall on April 11 with Marty, who was celebrating his thirty years as our postie. The huge gathering was a measure of how much esteem we all have for him. There were a lot of people who couldn't get a ticket.

Marty took us on a very amusing and interesting journey through his time here in Payhembury, saying that he'd enjoyed every minute of it, except when he was bitten by dogs. A lovely part of his talk was his reference to those parishioners who are no longer with us—and how he rendered social services to some of them!

Marty was ably assisted by John Somers as compere, and the great band "Blackdown Sound", who will definitely be coming back here. Ian and Sue Derbyshire organised the raffle, which raised a lot of money for the Payhembury Relief in Need Charity. Many thanks to all those who donated prizes.

Memories of Payhembury past

"We had everything you could want in a village - shop, post office, saddler, cobbler, cartwright - but we never had a baker. The baker used to come from Broadhembury every day with fresh bread."

Len Salter, Hillside

Did the Post Office double up as a saddler's in Victorian times? It would seem so.

This is William Harris, Esq whose portrait was taken, we believe, on his 90th birthday. We've been told he may have been a funeral director for the village. Does anyone know?

Bill Piercy (centre) we understand was the village cartwright in the early part of the 20th century, occupying the premises which later became the village shop and garage repair shop. Can you confirm this, or do you know differently?

With many thanks again to Brian Salter for providing access to these fascinating old photos.

Nature Notes - Observations from April

Hello everyone

Well, what terrific weather we're experiencing! The hot sun has finished our daffodils off, and I'm afraid the tulips may not last long. Still, we can't have everything.

In our garden, we are lucky to have not one, but two pairs of greenfinches feeding on the nuts and seeds. The male is a beautiful bird, like a small green parrot! We're lucky to have the two pairs, because greenfinches are not so common these days, having suffered from a nasty infectious disease. We also have lots of goldies, blue and great tits, plus blackbirds, robins, dunnocks and lots more.

This afternoon, there are two huge wood pigeons sitting in the bird bath -- it's so hot, I don't blame them.

I saw my first two swallows on the 8th April, down on the wires at Tuck Mill. Then, the next day, there were two in the village. They have already made a summer! There is a pair of grey wagtails by the stream in the village. I heard my first chiffchaff on the 3rd, at Willands Ash, and I've heard lots more since then. It's wonderful that these tiny birds battle their way to Britain from deepest Africa, every year at this time.

My daughter's father in law, who lives near Louth, Lincolnshire, tells me that two sparrow hawks killed a pigeon in his garden. They both worked in tandem to chase and kill the poor bird. Then, one of them flew up into a tree, whilst his mate fed, and then took his turn. I believe the hen bird would have eaten first, because, after all, he's a gentleman. More to the point, she's bigger than him! Talking of sparrow hawks, I saw one quartering the hedge tops near Tuck Mill. Then, when I reached Cokesputt, there she was again---still quartering the hedges.

The sunny weather has brought the butterflies out early. I've seen the lovely yellow brimstones, tortoiseshells and peacocks already. The orange tips should be next.

Bye for now, Alan

PARISH PAPER DEADLINE for the June issue is May 18th, 4pm.

If you would like to submit a contribution, whether it's information about a past or future event, an article of general interest or a front cover illustration for possible inclusion in The Parish Paper, please either email it to payhemburypaper@yahoo.com or pop it into the box at the bottom of the church steps on the right. We'd love to hear from you.

If you have a problem in meeting the May 18 deadline, please contact Claire McMurtrie, Editor for the June issue on 01404 841 559.

Dear Friends,

Do you like this picture of Parchina? Parchina was dressed up for an Easter parade. We travelled to our cousins' home on Easter Day after our service at Payhembury, we didn't want to miss out on the chocolate from Rev Cate. At their house they were having an Easter party and Easter parade and Parchina won first prize. It was great fun and lovely to meet up with our cousins and join in the fun, there were mice form all over the place, some had travelled across many fields but as it was dry they didn't get stuck in any mud.

The party made a great end to our Easter celebration. We so enjoyed seeing all the children in church on Good Friday and were amazed at how they scurried around with thoughtful faces. Then on Easter Day the great celebration when everyone was laughing and singing, oh at times we had to cover our little ears. Did you know mice have very sensitive ears? It's so we can listen out for prowling cats.

It went very quiet after Easter, no school services, it seemed very strange but we were outside playing in the sun. I even got sunburnt ears one day. Mum had told us to be careful but I forgot my hat! But we were soon back to normal with school and other services. I heard Rev Cate say we were going to have a christening later this month. I believe it must be Sebastian Harrison's, that should be fun and I expect we will see some of the other babies that have been christened as well. One day Parchina and I are going to dash down when no one is looking and have a swim in the font, hee hee that would scare Rev Cate.

Love and squeaks, Parchie and Parchina.

St Mary's Church, Payhembury
Community Quilt Day

Saturday May 9th, in the Parish Hall, from 9am - 1pm

Come for a morning of fun creating a quilt
All ages welcome, no skill needed!

The idea is that each family, couple or individual brings a piece of sturdy, pastel-coloured cotton, A5 (the size of this paper) plus 2.5cm around the edges to allow the pieces to be sewn together.

On the day there will be helpers to assist you. Your work can be embroidered, stitched, glued (felt) and decorated in any way you like. You choose your subject and design - it could be your family, pets or hobbies for example. So start thinking of ideas and collecting bits and bobs to decorate your work.

All sewing etc will be done on the day. Come with your ideas and we will provide help, extra fabrics and trimmings - and lots of teas and biscuits.

By making this quilt, we are hoping to raise money for our church, so the cost for the morning will be £10 per quilt piece. When all your work is sewn together, the finished quilt will go on display in the Church, as a record of our community project. Looking forward to seeing you there. Yo Smallwood

Payhembury writer's first novel comes out this month

May is an exciting time for Payhembury writer Serena Cairns -- her first novel, "Father of Lies" is published this month, and will be available through bookshops and online from Amazon. The book begins as a supernatural story and evolves into a mystery, involving a hidden prophecy, which stretches over centuries. Already it is being described by critics who have read proof copies as "a brilliant philosophical and theological adventure ... superbly written, tense and challenging", and showing elements of M.R James and Dan Brown but "quite original in its own right".

Serena's writing career began when she won a short-story writing course with The London School of Journalism, after which she went on to have stories, articles and poetry published in a number of magazines, ranging from Australian Cosmopolitan to The Criminologist.

Payhembury Weather

www.payhembury-weather.co.uk

Rainfall: March and now April have been in general dry with only 50% of normal rain so we will be needing some more rain this Spring to avoid a drought.

Temperatures: Much warmer than the average for March/April last century, especially during the daytime. On the 15 April (just outside this period) it reached a record breaking 24 degC in East Devon, much higher than forecast.

Weather elsewhere: Some interest over the effects of the partial eclipse of the sun on the 20th March, which could be seen from Devon, and I did see a decrease in temperature in my garden during the passage of the moon in front of the sun. A severe sandstorm over Beijing reduced visibility drastically on 16th April with people advised to stay indoors.

Feniton and Payhembury Mothers' Union

Sadly we had to cancel our Lady Day Service due to illness and holidays. Thinking of illness, we are delighted that Marjorie Wright has now come home from hospital and we hope she will make a speedy and full recovery.

We were delighted to welcome Rev Frank Minchinson as our speaker this month. He gave us a fascinating talk on imagery and icons. Not only did he talk about imagery down the ages saying that icons were thought of as 'windows into heaven' but he explained how icons were produced and showed us some he had painted himself.

We are most grateful to David and Joan Evans for bringing Frank and his wife Jill over from Exmouth.

This month we go on our outing to Buckfast Abbey on Wednesday, May 20th.

Judy Davis (substitute reporter!)

"THANK YOU"

Very many thanks to all for your prayers and good wishes to support me and Alan whilst I was in hospital. It is good to be back home again and back in our lovely village with its wonderful caring community.

*All good wishes
