THE PARISH PAPER

St. Mary the Virgin, Payhembury

Vol 55 No 11 May 2023

Top part of the official invitation to the coronation on Saturday 6 May designed by Andrew Jamieson, a heraldic artist and manuscript illuminator. The British wildflower meadow bordering the invitation features lily of the valley, cornflowers, wild strawberries, dog roses, bluebells, and a sprig of rosemary for remembrance, together with wildlife including a bee, a butterfly, a ladybird, a wren and a robin. Flowers appear in groupings of three, signifying The King becoming the third monarch of his name. More information on https://www.royal.uk/coronation-invitation.

Rectory notes – Heavenly Horrible Histories

The Horrible Histories children's books' author and God seem to agree. Kingship is dangerous. "Every king and queen in history has been either stupid or cruel but most of them have been both!" said author Terry Deary in a recent interview, as Horrible Histories marks its 30th birthday. "This will be the ways of your king," warned the prophet Samuel when the Israelites longed to have a king like everybody else, "He will take your sons... your daughters... the best of your fields... and you shall be his slaves."

Thank goodness we no longer live in an age when kings have absolute power. As we have been warned, 'power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely'. Our new king wields little direct power but still has important influence. In his mother we saw the light touch and immense grace with which this privileged position can be held.

Thankfully long gone too is any belief in the 'divine right of kings'. Indeed the relevance of a monarch in 21st Century Britain is understandably questioned. Yet our nation remains grounded, in theory at least, on Christian foundations.

And so King Charles III will be anointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury with olive oil, a tradition rooted in Old Testament times. The oil will come from the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem, linking both to his spiritual heritage through Christ who walked there, and to his blood-line, his paternal grandmother being buried there. In this symbol, divinity and humanity thus connect – heaven and earth. 'Thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven' – in his vows, King Charles recognises his unique role in seeking to bring about more of heaven on earth.

What qualities does he need to do this? The same as the rest of us. The C of E produced a booklet of daily prayers for the 28 days between Easter and the Coronation. The final nine before the Coronation Day are for the nine 'Fruit of the Spirit' from St Paul: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control – the qualities of heaven.

Where might Charles III sit for future young readers in a Horrible Histories line that has included the likes of the King of Bling (Charles II) and Vile Victoria? Whatever the humour, may his reign be a Heavenly Horrible History.

Party in the Park

Payhembury's Party in the Park is back!!

With awesome live music, yummy food stalls, a licensed bar and lots of family fun.

We got a grant!

We applied for a grant and got it. It was awarded by the EDDC from their Community Building Fund to help us with the cost of buying and installing solar panels on the roof of the shop. So thank you, EDDC, long may the sun shine!

The grant only covers a third of the cost but it is most welcome in these difficult trading times for us. The work, along with the new roof on the outside area of the shop as detailed in last month's magazine will commence very shortly if it hasn't already by the time you read this.

Last month our ice cream freezer packed up and wasted a fair bit of stock - it happens. But just like the monarchy we have a new one now with loads of fresh stock and maybe it will be hot enough to indulge in some for the coronation celebrations.

We will have had the Pat Holdaway Memorial Tea to celebrate her life and stalwart volunteering at the shop since it opened. We will all miss her smiling face and generous spirit. She always said to me that the shop community kept her sane and supported her in so many ways.

We were sad to hear of the passing of Pat Holdaway. Many of our readers knew the always smiling Pat from her time volunteering in the shop, where she was always happy to have a chat with customers.

She will be greatly missed by her many friends from around the parish. Editors

Payhembury Weather Weather for March 2023

www.payhembury-weather.co.uk

Rainfall: March in contrast to February was a very wet month. After a dry week it rained almost every day in March resulting in almost double the normal rainfall by the end of the month. The Met Office declared this was the wettest March since 1981 for England with Devon being typical of most of southern England. April so far has been a bit drier but storm Noa brought more rain and strong winds across SW England on 11-12 April.

Sunshine: Several counties, including Devon, had their dullest March on record with less than 50% of the normal sunshine. Over Payhembury my solar cells recorded 67% of the norm but this is only a proxy method of recording sunshine.

Temperatures: The temperatures gradually increased through the month resulting in slightly above normal values for day and night in the monthly mean. There was only one frost night on 6 March.

Weather elsewhere: Tropical Cyclone Ilsa, a category 5 storm, crossed over the north-west Australian coast on 13 April giving the highest winds ever recorded on the mainland, as fast as 283 km/h causing extensive damage. Storms in South Florida gave almost 300 mm of rain in a matter of hours on 12 April, causing widespread flooding, closing the Fort Lauderdale airport and turning thoroughfares into rivers. On 10 April a volcano in Kamchatka, Shiveluch, erupted releasing large amounts of sulphur dioxide into the stratosphere which subsequently crossed the Pacific. Being high up it was no threat to the public.

Paul's Nature Notes - March—April 2023

For those of us interested in wildlife and the environment these are depressing times. There are worrying declines in so many once common species. It is happening right around the world but the UK's track record is not a good one and I suspect little will change unless there is the political will to do so. On the other hand it is easy to overlook some heart-warming developments.

Beavers became extinct in the 16c but recent re-introduction programmes have seen them re-establishing in parts of Devon. I saw them on the River Otter pre-covid and have since witnessed signs of their presence right here in our own parish. On the other hand, I have yet to see otters here in the wild.

Buzzards are now our most common bird of prey and can be seen almost daily over the village, but this has not always been the case. By the mid-1900s they had a restricted range and were rarely seen in numbers outside Wales. I still remember my first sighting over Exmoor some 40 years ago and it was not until the early 1990s that the first birds reappeared along the Sussex Downs.

Ospreys were persecuted to extinction during the 1800s, as was the case with red kites. The kites just about held on in Wales but since a major re-introduction programme some 30 years ago in the Chilterns they have made a spectacular return. Ospreys on the other hand are still having a tougher time of it and progress is still slow. It is still too early to say what will happen to the sea eagle re-introduction programme, although early signs are encouraging.

We recently spent a week in Cornwall and were delighted to have several sightings of red -billed choughs along the rugged coastline, the best of which happened at Lizard Point. Choughs almost became extinct in the early 1900s surviving in Cornwall until 1952 and on remote cliffs in Wales. There followed a very slow recovery in parts of its range until a pair returned to Cornwall in 2001 where it is now estimated that there may be as many 200 birds, although Wales still holds the major part of the population. Choughs are members of the corvid family, slightly larger than jackdaws but smaller than crows and ravens. We had seen several birds flying around – not easy to separate from the slightly smaller and more numerous jackdaws unless you are close enough to see their red bills and legs. We were blessed – at the very moment we were about to leave the area, a pair flew in and settled on a cliff top just a few yards away. I have heard rumours that choughs have arrived in Devon....

The optimism of February, when we were working the fields, led into a wet old march, leaving cricket clubs up and down the country battling the weather to be ready for the start of the cricket season. Having decided that our home patch should be a field beside a river at the bottom of a valley (I appreciate its not the biggest valley nor the biggest river) we are even further behind than most. Our ground prep evening was cancelled due to a flooded outfield and our first game at Clyst Hydon has fallen victim to the weather. Apparently you can buy something called a "Pitch Dry Roller" which soaks up water – we could soon be heading that way!

On the playing side its been good to see stalwart groundsman and wicket keeper, Tim Hubbard, back to full health and at the other end of the scale, young Jack Hammett has signed up for his first season in the Millers shirt . Go well Jack!

All volunteers to play, umpire or man the bar are always welcome.

Hopefully we will be up and running in time for the Voneus Village Knock Out Cup game at home to Perranporth on Sunday 7th May at 2pm – all support welcome and without trying to influence anyone, the bar will be stocked and open!

Gardening Club

At our April meeting we had a talk by Michael Gee speaking on Devon Orchards and cider, a most interesting and knowledgeable talk about the cider orchards and his own Mazzard Cherry orchard with trees far too high to pick fruit from!

On 3rd May at 7.30 in the Memorial Hall, our next guest is Katherine Crouch, garden designer, Chelsea Gold Medal winner and BBC Gardener of the Decade, speaking on "New Tricks for Old Gardeners".

Our Annual Plant Sale will soon be upon us. This will be in the village square on Saturday 13th May at 10 am to 12 noon. This is our main fundraising event to cover the cost of speakers. So if you have plants to spare then please bring them just before 10.00 on the morning of the sale.

New members and visitors are always most welcome to come and enjoy excellent talks, tea and cakes, a raffle and the company of other gardeners. Membership remains at £10 for the year and visitors usually £2

Sweet Violet (Viola odorata)

What a wonderful time of the year this is... with all the trees, hedges and gardens bouncing back to life. With the deluge of emerging plants, it has been tough to choose one for this article, but on going for a walk this lunchtime I caught the scent of some sweet violets growing on the wall outside my kitchen door and hey presto!

First impression of sweet violets is that of a very delicate plant. It lays close to the ground, some small violet flowers looking up and some looking down. These violet flowers that you see in the springtime aren't true flowers as they don't produce seeds. Later in the year small nondescript violet flowers form underneath the leaves and fulfil the reproductive duties of a true flower. It is commonly said that violets flower in the spring for the sheer exuberance of doing so. But don't let violet's delicate nature fool you, however - This plant is a powerful ally in disguise.

Violets have been used as food, cosmetics and medicine since ancient times. They are high in Vitamins C and A, containing other minerals and also an anti-oxidant activity. Violet flowers can be crystallised and used as edible decorations. The leaves and flowers can be added to salads soups, or fried in batter. Sweet violets are grown commercially in southern France to produce essential oils to manufacture perfume, flavouring and cosmetics.

Violet flower is an important addition to your medicine chest during the cold and flu season. A syrup of the flowers can soothe an irritated and hot throat. It improves lymphatic flow so can relieve congestion and swollen lymph glands. Cooling and mucilaginous, violet can be used for a dry cough and for ear infections.

Violet's most famous use is for a fresh leaf to disperse cysts, lumps, and fibrotic tissue of the breast. In this instance Herbalist Matthew Wood recommends a fresh poultice of leaves and flowers for clearing the lymphatic system, so improving conditions of the breasts, lungs, arthritis, swollen lymph glands, infections, and the skin.

Sweet violet was traditionally made into infusions, syrups, honeys, vinegars, compresses and salves. Infusion is the most commonly used method - a wash can aid nappy rash, cradle cap, weeping sores, insect bites and varicose veins or as a mouthwash for mouth and throat infections. Drinking infusions can reduce chronic skin disorders, and stimulate both the circulatory and immune systems. A heaped teaspoon of fresh herb per cup of boiling water 3 times a day is ideal.

Caution –A very safe plant, but very high doses can lead to nausea and vomiting.

Please remember because we are all unique, we can have different responses – always ask a qualified health professional

By mid May all our summer birds have returned to breed. This year in Payhembury one particular species is more keenly awaited than ever - the swift. Will our first breeding pair make it back to the church tower? Have they both survived the cyclones in Mozambique, the sandstorms in the Sahara? If they are on their own - can they find a new mate and breed again?

In 2022 we installed a cabinet of 24 swift boxes behind the louvres on the east window of the belfry. As swifts are social birds and like to nest in colonies, we tricked the swifts into thinking there was already a swift colony there by playing decoy calls and sure enough we managed to get a pair to settle and breed last year. This photo taken on 21 July 2022 shows the first chicks from the tower colony.

We hope the parents of these birds will return to this same box and breed this year. The young will most likely disperse to another colony (like Kentisbeare or Feniton or Broadhembury or Awliscombe!) but in any case won't settle to breed until they are 3 years old. There were signs that other boxes had also been visited by swifts and we wait to see what the summer of 2023 has in store for our new swift colony.

Swifts are declining at an alarming rate in the UK. The breeding population has halved in the last 25 years. Their decline is at least partly caused by their traditional nest sites in older buildings being sealed as buildings are renovated and updated. And new homes almost never have spaces for swifts in their roofs. Despite this worrying decline new colonies can be established and helped to prosper by providing nest boxes. You can help swifts by installing nest boxes where you live. Find out more at https://www.swift-conservation.org.

Look out for swifts at the tower in Feniton where a cabinet of 5 boxes now hosts 2 pairs and at Talaton where work is underway to have a cabinet of 16 boxes in place ready for this season. Awliscombe church will have a cabinet of 9 boxes and Broadhembury too will have some spaces ready for swifts to start nesting in the belfry this year. Enjoy your summer of swifts and let's hope there are many more summers full of swifts to come!

New Picnic Bench in the Playing Fields

The Parish Council have bought a new picnic bench for the playing fields, to replace the old wooden one that had to be removed last year. The new picnic bench is octagonal in shape and is made from 100% recycled plastic, which should last up to 25 years — much longer than traditional wooden ones. The bench is expected to arrive during May and should be in place before the May half-term school holiday.
